SPOTLIGHT

In keeping with UN reform urging greater public engagement and advocacy by all agencies, UNESCO Bangkok closed out 2022 advocating for important issues in our region, including heritage preservation and intangible cultural heritage; social and emotional learning in early schooling; and regional cooperation for transforming higher education. In stimulating blog posts and interviews, colleagues also shared urgent perspectives on the importance of STEM education in the region; the need to combat gender-based violence in schools; and the fundamental right to choose one's gender identity without fear of bullying or other marginalization. The year closed out with the announcement of two exciting new initiatives, one enhancing cross-sector dialogue on the arts in PDR Laos, and the other advancing the education of migrant children fleeing violence along the Thai-Myanmar border.
